Bee-Song

words by Anne Baring

Grand Grand Mother is returning

words by Judy Grahn

music by Pamela J. Marshall

The choral pieces “Bee-Song” and “Grand Grand Mother is returning” are the last movements of The Future of Life, a 30-minute, 8-movement choral piece for SATB chorus, trombone and piano. The theme of the larger piece is concern for and celebration of biodiversity, with texts from the book The Future of Life by Edward O. Wilson, in addition to these two poems.

I've made standalone versions of these two pieces for either SSAA or SATB chorus and piano. In these versions, the piano introduction to “Bee-Song” is shortened, and the trombone part in “Grand Grand Mother” is incorporated into the piano. The original version of “Bee-Song” doesn't include trombone.

Notes

My take on the state of the Earth, seen through these texts...

Bee-Song

The condition of the environment may seem dire, but there is much cause for hope. As Thoreau taught us, many people know there is much to value in the natural world, including the nourishment it brings our spirit. “Bee-Song” with text by Anne Baring is a beautiful hymn to this nurturing. The hive, the Earth, is our Mother, protecting and sustaining us.

Grand Grand Mother is returning

I am hopeful that we will achieve a balance so that the natural world will remain rich and beautiful, to sustain us and enrich our spirits. “Grand Grand Mother is returning” celebrates that continuity of natural processes — “the egg is always getting laid and laying” and human concepts too — “truth is being found and finding”. I believe in this energetic, rhythmic text and music to propel us forward from dire warnings of an ominous future to hope and positive action.

I'm excited to have created this piece of music with such strong, emotionally compelling texts, but that isn't the end of it. The complete book The Future of Life by Edward O. Wilson has detailed information about why we need to protect life on Earth and conserve its grand diversity.

Please read the book! Let others know about its message!

Bee-Song

By Anne Baring, titled "The Song"

Beehive source
Trellised womb
Mother of all beginnings

Hold me
Gather me
Feed me
With the honey-nectar
From the hive.

Nourished
I will sing
The Bee-song
The long-forgotten threnody
Of praise to thee.

Grand Grand Mother is returning

By Judy Grahn

The egg is always being made
and making,
always getting laid
and laying;
thread is being spun
and spinning,
truth is being found
and finding,
getting all unwound
and winding,
being all unsnarled
and snarling,
and the Grand Grand Mother is returning

that's all I know

Don't suppose it will be as it is remembered
in time past

time present is a different unpredicted picture

time future happens
only in the mind

Worlds are always ending
and beginning,
tales are getting learned
and learning,
birds are always taking off
and landing;
the sky is ever being turned around, and turning;
the tree is ever being stood upon
and standing;
and the flame is getting burned
and burning

Grand Mother is returning
don't expect
the past, expect
whatever happens,
men are moving, more
than ever women are
just waking;
Grand Grand Mother
is returning

that's all I know

"Bee-Song" is the seventh movement of "The Future of Life" for SATB chorus, trombone and piano, commissioned by The Master Singers, Adam Grossman, Music Director. The text is the poem "The Song" by Anne Baring, first published 1996 in "The Divine Feminine" by Anne Baring and Andrew Harvey, and used with the kind permission of Anne Baring.

The subject of the whole work is the preservation of biodiversity, with texts from "The Future of Life" by conservation biologist Edward O. Wilson and poems by Ann Baring and Judy Grahn. Bee-Song is the only movement without trombone. I created the SSAA version for Women of Note, directed by Carla Strandberg. Find out more about "The Future of Life" at www.spindrift.com.
